Project Overview

This Comprehensive Interior Design Package is intended to identify the initial interior outfitting for the Sonobuoy and LOX Facilities as Part A of the P259 Apron Expansion and Supporting Facilities Project at Naval Air Station, Whidbey Island, WA. It includes two sections; the Structural Interior Design (SID) Package and the Furnishings, Fixtures and Equipment (FF&E) Procurement Package.

The Sonobuoy Facility is approximately 9,040 square feet and the LOX Facility is approximately 2,280 square feet. Both facilities include small administrative areas and toilet rooms to support the main function of the each building. Materials and finishes were selected in accordance with performance requirements with an emphasis on durability, ease of maintenance, sustainability and life cycle cost.

The SID identifies the Architectural materials and finishes as selected by the A/E and Interior Designer in accordance with NAVFAC and its customers. The SID will be implemented by the General Contractor under the Construction Contract. The SID was developed during the design process in conjunction with the preparation of the FF&E to ensure a unified and aesthetically pleasing design. The FF&E is funded separately from the construction contract, however; the procurement and associated coordination will be provided by the General Contractor under a modification/option to the contract.

The requirements for the collateral equipment furnishings were determined and refined by the customer and the Interior Designer. A budget was developed based on these requirements and items were researched and selected to meet the needs of the customers. All items specified in the FF&E have been selected in accordance with the NAVFAC Interior Design Policy utilizing the Naval Supply Command Blanket Purchase Agreements (BPAs), General Services Administration (GSA) Federal Supply Schedule (FSS) Multiple Award Contracts (MAS). Multiple suppliers and vendors from the BPAs and schedules were considered and a "Best Value Determination" recommendation was made to those which best met the requirements of this project based on price, probable life, warranty, maintenance availability and environmental considerations.

Procedures for justifying the specified items have been followed as stated in the FAR (Federal Acquisition Regulations), Subpart 8.4 Federal Supply Schedules and the NAVFAC Interior Design Policy. Supporting documentation has been provided herein.
